

To Whom It May Concern

I was so impressed with Michael Kennedy's skill in lesson planning, and his ability to analyze and communicate abstract ideas, with concrete precision.

As a music teacher, I have been expected to write lesson plans for 20 years now. I have experienced group planning and writing projects with school district personnel, arts councils, and with university professors. I have also designed and written my own music curriculum called Drum Talk. (See more at www.DrumTalk.com)

I was so impressed when Michael Kennedy analyzed some of my lesson plans. It was the first time I didn't have to go over things again and again. He immediately understood the big picture. He asked precise questions regarding some missing information in my writing and presentation.

He knows his business extremely well. Beyond his thorough analytical skills, he is very patient and cordial in his communication style.
